“ My heart goes out to you and your family! We had a daughter killed in an accident at age 21 and it's like something hits you in the stomach and you just want to wake up from this nightmare but you don't. This was 27 years ago in Nov. The pain does soften but never goes away. I would cry at the drop of a hat, anytime and anywhere. Mourn at your own pace and lean on your friends and family. People will avoid talking about her but you will want to, so do! Most of all let our Lord and Savior help you through this most terrible time. Love and sympathy to all!!

“ I still remember Ashtyn and I would meet in the bathroom or she would talk to me in the school hallway when she saw me. She would always help me with homework when I needed. She will be missed so much by everyone. I can't believe God had to take her so early, she was such a sweet girl. I loved her so much!!

“ You do not know me but I too am a mother who lost my child in a tragic accident my son (21) left behind two sisters... please know you will all remain in my sincere prayers,, you will all get through this but it takes time ... people will tell you it will get better.... From experience I can say it never goes away but it changes in time you will remember the happy memories of your beautiful daughter and sister...praying for peace and somehow understanding.
