“ My brother was always a very loving giving man.He would be struggling himself and would do anything to help his family even if that meant him going without.My daughter Samiya absolutely adored him.She took her first camping trip last summer with me and him.It is really hard right now with it being summer again and she wanted to go camping with him again.I am at a lost for words over his sudden death and it hurts my heart.I live almost 900 miles away from him.As soon as I heard he was on life support I got a greyhound bus back to my family to try to see him.Sadly my 28 hour bus ride was not enough to get to him he passed 4 hours before I could get to my family.I will never forget I was stuck in Columbus,Ohio for a layover getting ready to board the bus for the final part of my trip.I didn't know it at that time yet he passed away I found out when I was getting off the bus from my aunt.I had to breakdown and cry.I had to keep myself strong for my mother and now I am doing the same for my 3 year old daughter.Exactly how do you tell a 3 year old her favorite uncle is gone.I know in my heart she is always going to remember her first camping trip.He adored her just as much as she adored him.It is to hard to keep strong all the time so I been crying in private.He was very caring and would give the shirt off of his back to help others.He missed being in the Navy he would always tell his stories of when he was over in Iraq.We have a GoFundMe page under our aunt's name Debra Anderson from Benwood WV to try to replace the cost.As our mom is on a tight income and she had to cover it all.We wish we could have had a proper service for him but budget did not allow for it.If I could have done anything to keep this from happening I would have.I would do anything for just one more day with him.I feel so lost now as he was my only sibling.I will be praying for him until we meet again.
