“ my Aunt Doris was a funny and loving lady. She loved to tease and laugh a lot.

She was very close to her sister Wilma. She would do anything for her.,

When she was older, and had to wear glasses she fought it all the way.

When you would see her out, she would squint, until you got close enough for her to make you out. I would say Aunt Doris where is your glasses?

She would tell me at home, or in her purse, she didn't need them.

When she was in Moundview Nursing Home I would ask her who I was and she would look and make her cute face like she was thinking. I would tell her Barbara Kay and she would say oh yes you are.

I would ask her who my husband was and she knew immediately it was Bob.

Aunt Doris is my last Blood Aunt, sister of my Dad Webster Brown.
