“ Ivan and Jean:

Please feel comforted knowing that Roger is no longer in pain. He suffered for so many years and still held his head up with no complaining. He is truly a strong person and a servant for God. We will all miss seeing him at the fair with his prized goats. I just hope his kids and grandkids will follow in his footsteps, and continue to show goats and rabbits. If there is anything we can do to help you through these tuff times, please feel free to call anytime. May God be with you all, and bless you always.

“ Roger (Ivan) has been a great friend for many years and will be greatly missed. His life was full of love and care and his pride was his family first and always. He was the kind of person who would go out of his way if necessary to help anyone who needed it. One thing I always admired about Roger is that he is one of those rare people who had an instinctive eye for good livestock. His eye for horseflesh provided him with some of the best horses around, and later on, breeding his rabbits and dairy goats brought him much pride and joy. He always had a positive outlook, even through his terrible illness, and I am comforted that he renewed his faith in Jesus Christ, and that all others who share that same belief, including me, will spend eternity with him in Heaven. Until then I will miss you Roger...I love you!
