Where to begin .I've known Becky since birth and most of her family her mother her brothers and sisters are so special to me Frankie , I was at your wedding both so young and in love my heart is breaking for you and the children . Being a mother we want to protect and definitely want to leave this world before our babies , God has His own plans , we question and try to understand however there is a purpose, we may never know until we meet again ! but I can witness for a fact He is with you giving strength and love and will stay by your side through this "another life's trials" we have been so blessed to have known Becky and I know she's rejoicing with our Lord

“ I'll never ever forget how we laughed, giggled, girl-talked and complained together ;) You're too kind for words to explain, and too loving for a single heart to hold. You're a much better person than I'll ever be, and you are just way too young for all of this. I keep wishing someone would just jump up and say, "Surprise! Happy Halloween!" But I dont think that's going to happen.

“ When I met Bec all I saw was glitter and smiles. She could always make me smile and would cry right along beside me if needed. Her laugh was contagious and her heart generous. She loved to sing and dance and made sure we all did even if we absolutely did not want to. She will be missed greatly, I'm sure she's still singing and dancing right along with those we hold dear. She maybe gone, but her spirit will forever shine through the in eyes of her children. I hope they will always know how much she loved them and Frankie. So glad you were in our lives. I will see you again someday. Until then, keep on smiling, laughing and shining.
