“ Bob has joined the Lord’s saints. He loved and honored Sandy through all the craziness our family could come up with. He cared for her physically and emotionally through alzheimer’s. Bob’s kind, quiet, loving nature showed through no matter what. He wasn’t perfect; he was just Bob! We will love him forever.

“ Sometime in the early 1960s I remember Bob patiently waiting in his car (something long, shiny, and black) while Sandy ran in our house to try on a spaghetti-strap dress that my mom had made for a party she and Bob were attending. Through all the years that is how I always remember Bob—quiet, patient but also with a ready smile.

I also remember him tenderly holding a newborn Alicia, all the while his face and body language showed that young father fear that he might drop her. He did not drop her. I was not around when Kerry was born. Bob surely was a pro at holding babies by then.

Bob and Sandy will always be part of my Cameron memories.

“ I remember stopping by Bob and Sandy's house, and there the three of them sat, Bob, Sandy and Kerry, all reading quietly in the family room. It felt like a warm intimate moment that has always stayed with me when I think of my cousins. I have so many memories of time spent with them. Love and condolences, Judy and Steve Burge
